

Alexandra Samargia
Staff Reporter

A Year in Review At RU

2022 is rapidly ending with holidays, traveling and new year's resolutions. Let's look back at some of Roosevelt's most memorable moments of the year.

The Laker Union: On January 19, the University opened a new center on the 3rd floor of the Wabash building. This center is used for offices, student involvement and the food and toilet pantry. As well, it is a great place for students to gather for events and relax.

Black History Month: Spencer Paysinger, former New York Giants linebacker visited campus during Black History Month to discuss his growing up and experiences with students.

Lakers Day: The University celebrated its first annual day of giving on April 21, where the Roosevelt community comes together to support giving back, good causes, and showing their laker pride.

RU Dance Team: In April, the Roosevelt Dance Team traveled to Florida to compete in the 2022 NDA Collegiate National Championships. They placed 4th in the NAIA Hip Hop division and celebrated with excitement.

Graduation: Roosevelt celebrated the class of 2022 achieving their goals and finishing their time at Roosevelt University with commencement on May 6.

Homecoming: RU was able to celebrate its first full homecoming week since 2019, and it was full of events and dress-up days. The week was followed by the homecoming dance and football game.

The American Dream Reconsidered Conference: The conference featured multiple panels discussing the themes and ideas of 'The American Dream'. Justice Sonia Sotomayor also visited the University and discussed her career and the importance of law and civic engagement not only within Chicago but across the country.

Many more exciting events happened to the Roosevelt University community, to read more check out the RU Instagram to get updates about the happenings around campus.